Embracing the Feminine in Business

Business - as we contextualize it, as we teach it, as you learn in an MBA or from your favourite podcast - fails women because it was neither designed by women nor for the feminine energy.

We are each a balance of Masculine (linear, future) and Feminine (nurturing, present) energies, and yet professional services have largely been built around a single approach. Equality in employment isn't a headcount, it's embracing a fundamental shift in how we design and manage companies that will empower both women and men to better lead and contribute.
